We would state that there is an abatement of our county tax of 1881 now due from the County of Hillsborough. The abatement amounts to $122.06.

There is pending against the town a claim of the town of Hudson for reimbursement of a part of the expenses of rebuilding Taylor's Falls bridge at Nashua. The case will probably be left to the County Commissioners, and it is supposed that it will be decided before the May term of Court.

AUDITOR'S REPORT.

The subscriber having been appointed a committee to examine the accounts of the Selectmen and Treasurer of the Town of Pelham, for the year ending March 1, 1882, reports that he finds all orders issued by the Selectmen duly vouched and receipted for, and the Treasurer's accounts correctly kept and properly vouched.

FREDERIC A. CUTTER,

Auditor.

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE

OF THE TOWN OF PELHAM,

FOR THE YEAR ENDING MARCH 1, 1882.

THE PAST YEAR.

The committee takes great satisfaction in reporting the past year. Never since his acquaintance with the schools has there been a year when each school and each term of school has been such a success. No exception could be taken to either of the teachers. Each is a person of unblemished character, of especial personal worth, fine qualifications for teaching, an unmistakable enthusiasm in the work and the right tone every way. These teachers made school not only pleasant for the children but the place where the best of influences came to their formative characters.

The school work has moved on in continuous harmony and increasing proficiency. Pernicious school habits have been corrected, more natural and advantageous methods of study and instruction have been supplanting the faulty ones of the past. Interest in study, gentleness, refinement, dutifulness and obedience have been marked features in each of the schools. Three of the schools had the same teacher the entire year. Something very desirable. No. 1 had three different teachers. No. 4, two. Each of the five schools had 30 weeks or more, excepting No. 1, where the winter term was cut short three weeks by the sudden and acute sickness of the teacher. But, though the threads of the term's work were broken, the inspiration and spirit of that work will live in all the scholars.

No. 6 held 17 weeks of pleasant and profitable school by an amateur teacher.

SOME PARTICULAR FEATURES OF IMPROVEMENT.

The roll of honor has been larger. There has been more punctuality in attendance. There has been improvement in the use of the vocal organs. Indistinct articulation has been nearly corrected. Children no longer speak with their teeth shut and their lips nearly closed. As a consequence there has been great improvement in reading. All the subjects of study from the primary to the most advanced have been presented by the teacher in natural and interesting methods and pursued with great accuracy.

Singing and calisthenics have been practised in most of the schools. The facility in writing has increased. The aim has been to have scholars learn to write with the same readiness and ease that they converse. In connection with their studies, scholars have been taught to form the habit of practical observation and application. The teachers have also imparted information upon subjects that relate to the duties of the social and civil state.

Growth in character has been most unmistakable. There has been less boisterousness and rudeness, and more self respect. There are boys and girls in our schools even between the age of ten and fifteen, whom, if it would not seem invidious, I should love to name as examples of real gentlemen and ladies. And while I believe that these graces are to a certain degree native in these children, they will not preserve them unless they have teachers who are good examples to them.

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE TEACHER.

This topic cannot be too thoroughly emphasized. We might almost say better no school than not the right teacher. The day is past when teaching may be resorted to as a kind of make-shift, or when the young man or woman who has advanced about as far as the average scholar in our schools may feel that he can teach; or even the very good scholar with broad attainments may think that forsooth he can teach. The first element to be considered in the teacher is character. This must be not only clean and transparent, but it must invest itself with an atmosphere that is a social, moral, and intellectual tonic. Nor will such an one do unless he has a natural aptness to teach, and love for the work.

And it should be thoroughly understood that our school money is not for the benefit of this family or that relative, but to support the best teacher that can be secured, and, it should be a settled question, that all young persons who have the laudable ambition to be teachers, must first be at the pains to attain the professional qualifications.

THE TEACHER VERSUS THE TEXT-BOOK.

Parents are anxious about the studies of their children and their advance in text-books. It may be said, however, that within certain limits, the studies are of no importance. But there is no sense in which the teacher is not of prime importance. Mr. Emerson once said, "I care but little what my daughter studies; the important thing is to know under what teacher she studies." The public sentiment and the method of employing teachers is such that the Superintending Committee is often forced to approbate teachers, contrary to his judgment and convictions.

EMPLOYING TEACHERS.

Committees ought to be persons having some practical knowledge of teaching. A gentleman eminent in the cause of education in Massachusetts, recently said that the schools in certain portions of that State had deteriorated because of committees not practically acquainted with education.

The statutes of New Hampshire say, expressly, no person shall be employed to teach unless that person shall first have obtained a certificate of the superintending committee, of his qualification to teach. But it is often the case that the teacher is employed and sent to the superintending committee only the day before the school commences, or even on the morning that it commences.

It must be said for the committees of the past year, that they were very judicious in the selection of teachers. They did not yield to the pressing applications that came along, and thus the schools were saved from some terrible inflictions.

It is often difficult to secure a good teacher. But a determination to accept of no other, and tireless effort will find such an one, as has been illustrated in the experience of the past year.

PUNCTUALITY.

Though this is referred to in almost every report, it must be dwelt upon until its importance is understood. Irregularity is not merely a loss to the subject of it, but to the whole school. Not merely does the scholar, absent a day from some idle purpose, lose a day, but he takes a day out of the school life of the others.

Scholars absent for other than the best of reasons, ought to forfeit the privileges of the school. There is a sense in which such a scholar should be expelled the same as if he were disorderly. And in this connection, I call the attention to the importance of a public sentiment that shall compel the larger boys and girls to feel that not the least disrespect or failure in dutifulness will be tolerated in them.

SCHOOL APPROPRIATION.

In the past years this has been in the vicinity of $1,300, which with the Literary Fund and Dog Tax, is sufficient, if wisely expended, to furnish thirty weeks of school. When the next apportionment of the State Tax is made, it is probable that the base on which the school tax is computed will be so changed as to considerably reduce the school money. As this reduction can make but a trifle's difference in the tax of individuals, but an important difference in the welfare of the schools, I would suggest that the appropriation for schools never be less than $1,300.

SCHOOL-HOUSES.

A neat school-room, with modern furniture and conveniences, contributes greatly to the efficiency and usefulness of the school. No. 2 has made needed and valuable repairs on their house; such indeed as to cause the school-room to seem like a new one, and it has been dedicated by a year of most faithful and excellent teaching.

THE COMING YEAR.

No friend of education can consider the past year without a deep anxiety for the coming year. Could the teachers of the past year be secured to carry on the work they have so well done, we might justly rest in delightful expectation of the future. No pains should be spared to secure a result so important.
